Real Estate Agents Pledge to Provide Support for Veteran and Military Homebuyers In the Raleigh/Durham/Chapel Hill Area

Raleigh custom home builder offers Triangle Military Real Estate Referral Guide to assist Veteran and military buyers and sellers

Raleigh, NC – June 30, 2008 – Raleigh custom home builder Stanton Homes is pleased to announce a new real estate referral guide for military and veteran home buyers and sellers that features Triangle real estate professionals committed to help support military and Veteran families through excellent service, in partnership with the “Stanton Homes for Heroes” program.

The real estate agents featured in the Research Triangle Park Military Real Estate Referral Guide offer expertise in real estate and military support that allows them to understand the needs of veterans and active duty military families. Some are experts with VA loan transactions. Others have family members in the Armed Forces, and know firsthand what a military relocation requires. Some are veterans themselves. Some have all of this background and more.. Together, they specialize in the RTP and surrounding Raleigh/Durham/Chapel Hill area and every type of real estate transaction in the state of North Carolina.

“I have great respect for all who have served our country, and understand some of the special challenges they have,” said Bill Dixon, President of the North Carolina Vietnam Veterans association, and one of the agents featured in the guide. Dixon is a licensed real estate agent with Zip Realty, and is able to offer his clients 35 years of experience in the real estate industry, including extensive residential design and custom building. “I commend Stanton Homes for their support of Veterans and active duty men and women who are serving our country, and am happy to do all I can myself to provide for the real estate needs of these families.”

The “Stanton Homes for Heroes” program offers special discounts and incentives to military and veteran homebuyers. Stanton Homes also offers a variety of distinctive services, including modifying homes to meet the Department of Veteran Affairs’ Specially Adapted Housing (SAH) Minimum Property Requirements (MPR’s).

“The ‘Heroes’ program was created as a way to applaud the many Veterans and military families for their service to our country,” said Stan Williams, CEO of Stanton Homes. “Whether based in the area or supporting family members here while in service around the world, these people give so much for all of us. This is our way of giving back.”

“We’re pleased that these real estate agents are adding their support and expertise to this outreach for military and veteran families,” added Williams. “Some families are looking to sell their current home. Others need help finding the right piece of land. Whether they’re looking for advice, a second opinion, or someone to help them find just what they’re looking for, we hope the Research Park Triangle Military Real Estate Referral Guide will help them find professionals who meet their needs.”

In addition to committing to serve the special needs of military and veterans, some agents have also partnered with Stanton Homes to add to the “Stanton Homes for Heroes” incentive program. These agents have pledged additional special offers and incentives, including discounted commissions, free pre-inspections, and contributions to charities.

“Military members and their families have always made the largest sacrifices and continue to be the foundation of our community,” said Brett Antonio of Weichert Realty, who has partnered with the program by offering free home warranties and discounted commissions to military and veteran buyers and sellers. “The ‘Stanton Homes for Heroes’ program will give the real estate industry the opportunity to show our support for all those who have served, and who continue to serve our community and nation. I am very honored to be a part of this program.”
